PM attends event marking 20 years of activity of American Chamber of Commerce in Moldova

Prime Minister Vasile Tofan has attended the anniversary event marking 20 years of activity of the American Chamber of Commerce in Moldova (AmCham), alongside representatives of the business community, development partners and members of the diplomatic corps.

The PM congratulated the organization on its contribution to improving the investment climate and strengthening the dialogue between the authorities and the business community. Vasile Tofan emphasized that the recommendations of business associations were taken into consideration in the process of developing economic policies, and that AmCham was an important partner of the government in promoting reforms.

The prime minister stressed that Moldova must capitalize on its entrepreneurial spirit and free initiative, in order to build a prosperous economy. In this regard, the government aims to reduce bureaucracy, administrative costs and the state's involvement in the economy, providing more space for business development.

"We want Moldova to become the most business- and entrepreneur-friendly country in Europe. To achieve this goal, we need the contribution of AmCham and all business associations," said the PM.

At the same time, Vasile Tofan referred to the accession to the European Union as a national objective that unites the citizens of Moldova and urged entrepreneurs and investors to maintain their confidence in the country's potential, despite the economic and geopolitical challenges.

The American Chamber of Commerce in Moldova was founded in 2006 and currently brings together more than 190 companies with American, foreign and local capital. The organization promotes investment, economic competitiveness, and the improvement of the regulatory framework.
